Wellness Corner: Starting a Healthy Daily Routine With the Y's Robert Calija CPT, Wellness Associate

1. Stand up tall with your feet directly below your hips.
2. Slowly reach both of your arms out and give yourself a big hug. As you reach both arms out, you'll feel the chest and shoulder muscles open up. The core stays tight.
3. Take a couple of deep breaths in & out.
4. Repeat this exercise several times to stimulate the brain to think positively. You'll experience loving yourself and better posture. Better posture protects against injury or discomfort.
5. Write this routine down and set a goal; how many times a month you can give yourself a big hug!
